What we will be, we are now becoming. Our characters are molded by our daily school life, its challenges, its trials, its accomplishments. During our high school years, objectives which help shape the future are formed in our minds. We learn that achievement in the classroom, on the athletic field, in extra curricular activities is attained only by conscientious and hard work, that success is not accomplished without struggle and sacrifice. We are the leaders of tomorrow and must use every opportunity available to become educated, well-adjusted individuals who will make worthwhile contributions to society.

We must set high standards for ourselves during our four high school years, remembering that "as the twig is bent, so is the tree inclined." It is within ourselves that our future lies.

We Set High Standards For Ourselves

Stand Rock is alive with the sound of music as the high school band and chorus presents the traditional Stand Rock Concert in June. Our high school music department is the only outside group, other than the one presenting the traditional Indian Ceremonial, permitted the use of this amphitheater.

LEFT: Displaying the results of many long hours of diligent work, Bill Burns and Bob Storandt arrange the display of projects completed by members of the woods class.

Used books, often discarded by their owners, gain a new value as they are gathered by the Chieftain Staff for its Maxwell Street Book sale. Proceeds finance camera needs, photography costs and trips to various newspaper plants. Here Greg Van Wie makes a purchase from Sue Kivlin as Jackie Michael assists.

"Not my father, not my mother, but it's me, Oh Lord!" During an assembly program, Mr. Charles King proves to Jim Jacobson, Jean Corning, June Kesler, and Skip Krueger that they can sing a Negro spiritual with the vigor and emotion that the plantation Negroes possessed.

We Learn To Meet Challenges

A strong cup of coffee failed to keep Sue Walker awake as she worked far into the night to finish her term paper before the deadline set by Mr. Buenzow.

ROBERT W. FENSKE
Superintendent of Schools

Administrators Plan

To our Superintendent, Mr. Robert W. Fenske, falls the tremendous responsibility of keeping the Wisconsin Dells school system functioning with clock-like precision. Possessing a professional attitude and sound educational philosophies, Mr. Fenske works diligently toward the consistent betterment of our school system.

Working hand in hand with Superintendent Fenske, the Board of Education established policies and set the rules and regulations necessary to maintain high educational standards. In addition to problems concerning personnel, finances and maintenance, the Board this year wrestled with the problem of increasing school enrollment. After considerable study, the Board decided on a $246,980 addition to the elementary school and a $170,600 addition to the high school building.

BOARD OF EDUCATION

ING: Warren Schultz, Gordon Foster, Clerk; Charles Thompson.

Expansion Program

Mr. Frederick Reineking possesses the unique ability to work with others in a gracious and diplomatic way. Although busy with the many details involved in keeping a high school operating effectively, he always has time to help students with their many questions as well as to counsel parents and teachers. With an experienced hand, he answers the endless questions and untangles the various problems which arise daily.

As the leader of our school, he seeks the best for those he serves and performs his numerous administrative duties with tact and efficiency. Mr. Reineking, with Mr. Fenske and the members of the Board of Education, has demonstrated progressiveness in administration, an unswerving interest in young people, and a dedication to the improvement of educational facilities in this area.

FREDERICK C. REINEKING
High School Principal

OFFICE SECRETARIES

Helen Vanduch, Kay Joyce, Eleanor Palmer

The high school office is maintained by three efficient and hard-working secretaries who handle mountains of paper work, sign hundreds of passes, and listen tolerantly to countless inquiries and requests from both faculty and students.

Each secretary has her own specific duties. To Mrs. Eleanor Palmer falls the sometimes unpleasant task of keeping attendance, checking on absentees, and determining who will serve detention. Mrs. Helen Vanduch can usually be found huddled over long columns of figures as she does the accounting for the school system. The newest member of our office staff is Miss Kay Joyce who is kept busy taking dictation from both Mr. Fenske and Mr. Reineking.

ACADEMICS

Cicero once said, "Studies are the food of youth, the delight of old age. . ." Education is more than "book learning"; it is a way of life. Education teaches us to use tact and consideration in dealing with others, to be at ease with all types of people, to become intelligent world citizens. Through our courses of study, we seek the rewards of education: the ability to think, to reason, to appraise.

What the future holds for us depends upon the effort we make. The challenge is to secure a broad educational background which will enable us to adapt what we have learned to our own interests. Whatever we choose to do, we hold the key to our own future.

Tom Anderson is using his powers of persuasion to convince members of the senior English class that states should not abolish capital punishment.

Broad Cultural

Whether a student wishes to increase his self-confidence, improve his English, or develop an appreciation of literature, the opportunity was provided in the four years of required English classes. The goal was self-improvement in speaking as well as in the understanding and appreciation of the written word. In addition to functional grammar, composition and vocabulary were stressed. Vivid films of the classics and dramatic records stirred emotions and made the study of literature realistic.

Due to the increased attention to foreign language, modern facilities, such as the language lab, were adopted for the study of Latin and Spanish. Mrs. Santovenia, a native of Cuba, added many interesting lectures and discussions to brighten classroom routine. First year Latin students devoted most of their time to the study of grammar, vocabulary, and sentence structure. Roman history and mythology were introduced to second-year students.

This junior English class is getting to know America through studying the newspaper, which is the most popular and widely read type of American literature.

Foundation Is Gained Through Languages

Tara Neubauer describes one of the pictures used as daily exercises to improve Spanish conversation to members of the Spanish III class. Drake Bixby, Sally Utter, Sue Reineking, Dawn Bixby, and Kathy Pennington.

Two projects are required of Latin II students. To fulfill one of these requirements, Diana Kruse is using a Latin-English dictionary to check the Latin roots of English words.

Prior to state elections, freshman English students, Charlene Anderson, Sharon Donnelly, Cheryl Armson, and Pete Helland discuss voting, the lack of interest in it, and requirements.

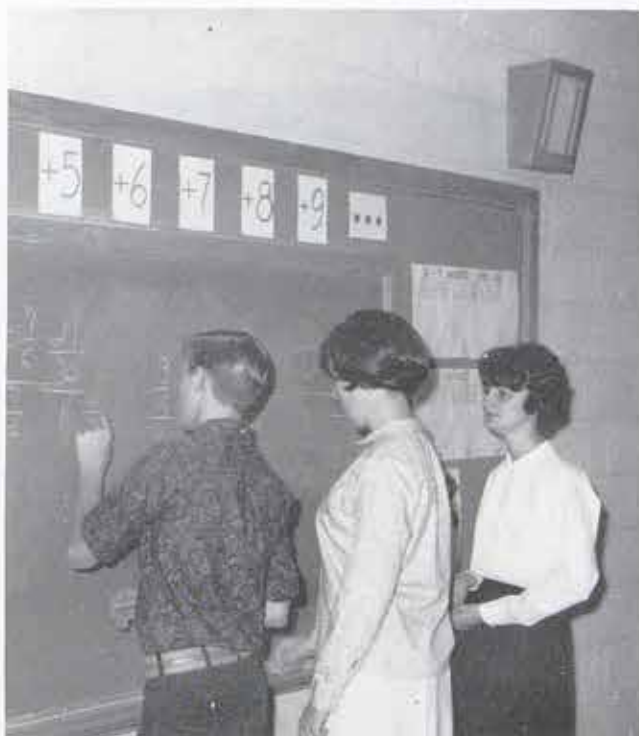

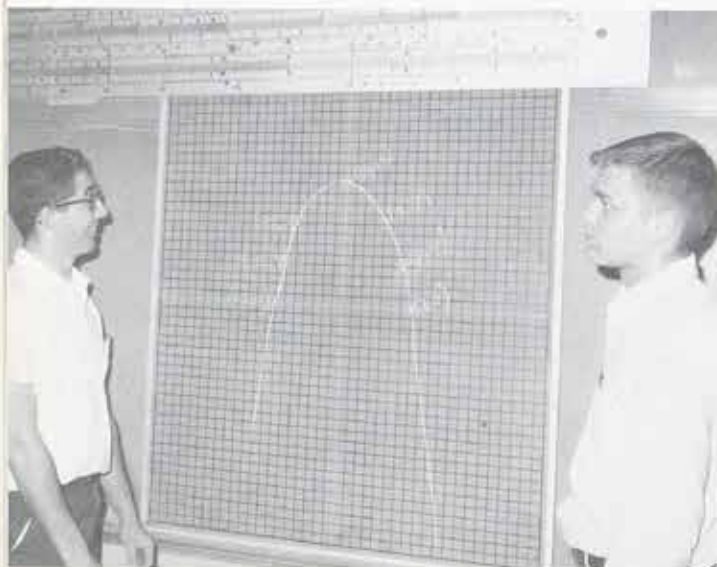

Biology students, Barb Ryan, Pam Pearson, Randy O'Neill, and Peter Joyce, study with interest the skeletal system of the vertebrae, the snake. Other vertebrae which are studied are the frog, the fish, the bird, and the human being.

Science And Math Intrigue

"The ordered pairs  $(-7, 0)$ ,  $(-6, 8)$  belong to the set which describes a quadratic function," states Frank Gray to Greg Zelner.

In a Pre-algebra class Cindy Schilling, Ann Pennington, and Peter Joyce discover that solving fractions is not always a simple task.

Stimulated by curiosity, science students met the challenges presented by Biology, Chemistry, Physics, and General Science classes.

Knowledge of the basic scientific principles was gained by those who took General Science. Novice biologists explored the wonderful world of micro-organisms.

Chemistry and Physics students performed various experiments as they delved into the mysteries of the atom. Films, lectures, and experiments aided comprehension and enlivened the classes of all science students.

The Math Department curriculum offered valuable training to discipline thinking. Each course taught meaningful mathematical concepts as well as facts and formulas. Such courses as Algebra I, Algebra II, Pre-Algebra, Math IV, and Geometry were taught. An attempt to offer a level of instruction to meet the abilities of every student was carried out by the department.

Becky Patten and Bruce Kaiser discover the difference between a diamond and a carbon crystal lattice in Chemistry.

Inquisitive Minds

Figuring out the period of the pendulum bob in Physics class is a challenging problem for Chris Lebica, Jackie Michael, and Mary Lou Jobe.

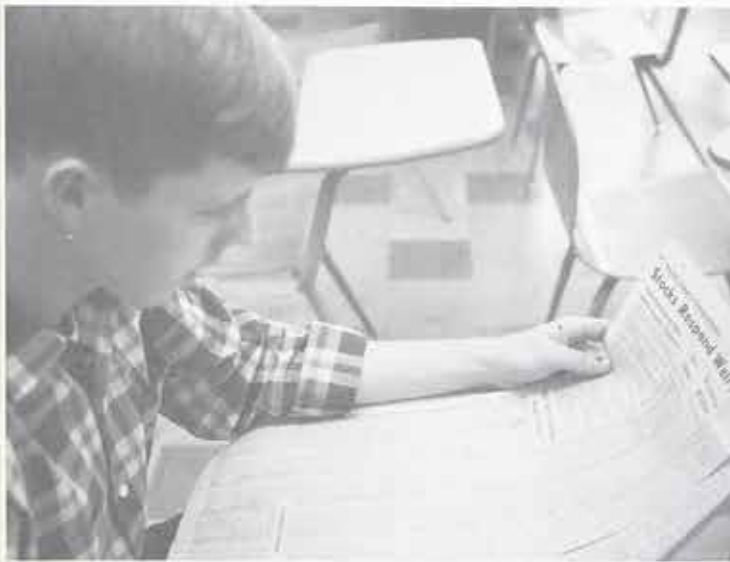

Gail Kaiser and Sue Johnson study the force of gravity in General Science class.

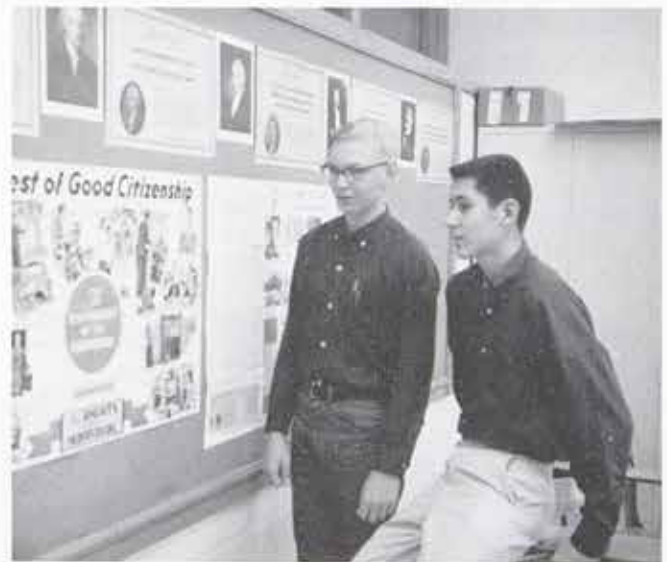

The pros and cons of capital punishment were debated in Social Problems class. Gary Small, Joe Nuttall, and Don Skarda took the affirmative side against the negative team, Carol Huber, Loretta Joyce, and Julie Braun.

With $1,000 to spend on the New York Stock Exchange, John Howley studies stock market quotations to help him make a sound investment.

Social Studies Arouse National Pride, Awareness And Understanding Of World Problems

Listening to a live broadcast, vividly narrated by Edward R. Morrow, of the major news events between 1933-1945, are Bonnie Erickson, Marilyn Lapp, Cindy Schilling, Jackie Hamm, Greg Lytle, and Jeff Stroede. This broadcast included such historical events as the Hinderberg disaster, Hitler's declaration of war, the Attack on Pearl Harbor, and the death of President Roosevelt.

Our American heritage, earned by decades of struggle is an intangible possession of all United States citizens. History becomes fascinating when an understanding of the political climate and living conditions of any area is gained. Without this knowledge, it is difficult to relate the origin of the democratic system to international situations.

Through critical thinking and study of present-day events, students obtained better understanding of world-wide problems. Thought-provoking and stimulating group discussions provided an outlet for personal opinions and questions. Several controversial issues were analyzed through written and oral reports. Students became familiar with world conditions and problems through records and vivid films. The variety of courses offered by the Social Studies Department included Social Problems, Economics, U.S. History, and area studies.

This year the members of the Advanced Typing class had an opportunity to learn how to operate the IBM key punch machine. Mr. Opiala, CESA Director of data processing, is showing Dwight Oberleitner, Kathy Roeker, and Terry Foster, members of the Advanced Typing class, how to feed information into the machine.

Taking dictation from Mr. Reineking gives Phyllis Pfister, a member of the Advance Shorthand class, some actual office experience.

Business Education Offers Courses

Sue Walker and Sue Anderson are putting up a bulletin board which should give members of the Bookkeeping class some pointers on finding trial balance errors.

The steady clicking of keys made the typing room easily identifiable. As time progressed, the slow "hunt and peck" sound changed to a confident stroke. Plenty of time writings brought increased speed and accuracy.

In elementary Shorthand class, it was like the first grade all over again as students learned to read, spell, and write shorthand. In Advanced Shorthand, girls learned all the tricks of being a good secretary--from correct letter form to smiling at the boss.

In Bookkeeping classes, there was many a worriedfrown as students poured over practive sets and wondered why trial balances did not balance. Clerical Record-keeping gave the students the skill and knowledge needed for simple clerical jobs in business as well as training in handling their own personal affairs. To keep in step with a rapidly approaching world of automation, students interested in IBM Key Punching had an opportunity to learn to operate this machine.

These advanced shorthand students are taking practice dictation at 120 words a minute to build reserve speed in preparation for the State Civil Service Test given to business education seniors in April.

For Personal And Vocational Use

Mary Walker, a member of the Clerical Recordkeeping class, is keeping a record of the personal expenses and receipts of a typical high school student.

Members of the 7th period Elementary Typing class are clicking off ten copies of the experts rhythm drill as a preliminary warm-up.

Fine Arts Program Develops Cultural Appreciation And Talents

Soloist Jim Jacobson rehearses his solo "Christmas Song" for the Christmas Concert with accompanist Derryn Loomis.

Music and art serve as universal means of communication. Both courses offered an opportunity for constructive self-expression as students learn to develop their aptitudes and talents in these fields. Hidden abilities were brought to light and developed to be used as a means of personal recreation or future vocation.

Work on such projects as still life drawings, scenery for the Christmas program, and posters for the annual staff provided variety for the art class which met first hour each day. Other projects included working on the design for a new flag and making posters for the Humane Society.

During the seventh hour each day the Chorus practiced for such performances as the Christmas Concert, Stand Rock Ceremony, and the Spring Concert. They also participated in the music festival held in the spring.

Both varsity and junior varsity bands met and practiced during the fourth hour each day. Individual lessons were given throughout the day.

Freshmen triple trio made up of Mary Leary, Mary Lucke, Vicki Tucker, Sally Fish, Lisa Reese, Charlene Anderson, Betty Cottine, Donna Anderson, and Julie Gussel are practicing with guitars the song "Today" for Talent Night.

Mr. Lucke's first hour art class is working on color combinations from monochromatic to analogous to complementary, using pastels, tempera paint, and crayons.

Putting some of the finishing touches on the background scenery for the Christmas Concert are Sue Anderson and Maureen Casey.

Trombonists Carol Ann Huber, Dennis Draper, and Ben Borchert put the finishing touches on their selection as they get ready for Spring Contest.

LEFT: Gerry Koehler, Maria Schultz, Rosemary Day, and Sharon Evans are packing Christmas cookies in attractive boxes in a freshman home economics class.

BELOW: Lynn Adams and Sharon Joyce are evaluating aprons in a freshman homemaking class, a project which involved a number of basic techniques.

Vocational Courses Develop Skills

RIGHT: Jean Corning, Sharon Greendeer, and Renee Thundercloud are learning to cook meats under a broiler in a sophomore homemaking class.

BELOW: Elwood Storm, Bill Roll, Stew Miner, Chris Westerfeldt, and Ron Sobjinski are making frames for copper tooled pictures they have made in general shop class.

John Buck, Joe Coon, Steve Guildner, Ron Evans, Joe Jermier, and Bill Hartman are listening to Pat Mitchell's oration on the subject of water pollution which he delivered at the Columbia County Soil and Water Speaking Contest.

And Enthusiasm For Hobbies

Don Kieta is putting the finishing touches on the chest that he made in woods class.

Courses in agriculture, industrial arts, and homemaking provide excellent opportunities to develop interests and hobbies as well as skills. Agriculture emphasized plant science, animal science, conservation, soils, fertilizers, mechanics, and economics.

The industrial arts program includes courses in drafting, woods, and general shop. In drafting the boys learned mechanical and architectural drafting. The use of hand tools, the wood lathe, and wood finishings were studied in woods class. During the second semester, woods student worked on some project of their own. The general shop courses included work in copper tooling, leathercraft, electricity, sheet metal work, and some upholstery.

The well-equipped home economics department offered complete courses in sewing cooking, child care, and home management. By supervised practice, girls obtained valuable experience which will help them become efficient homemakers of tomorrow.

Mr. Weigel is supervising Bob Lumby, Ron Heding, Mike Hartman, and Ted Brenson as they mix concrete in preparation for building concrete car stoppers for the parking lot.

Basic And Practical Shop Courses Develop Vocational Skills

Basic shop was added to the vocational program this year. This course is divided into two parts. The work of the first semester involved construction and various phases of the building industry. The second semester was devoted to the care and repair of small gas engines.

Practical shop is primarily intended for learning tools and skills involved in the repair and maintenance of machinery, utilities, and buildings.

In practical shop class Mike Schweda is splicing rope, an almost forgotten but very important skill in construction.

Happiness Is A Driver's License

With bumps and grinds, novice drivers found themselves on the road for the first time, under the supervision of the driver education instructor, Mr. Buenzow.

As each new semester opens, beginning students discover the awesome world of automation. The first weeks were spent in class learning traffic regulations that all drivers must observe. Films were shown at intervals during the class and, while these sights made some slightly ill, they made traffic hazards a reality to everyone.

Then came the long-awaited test drive on the highway. For some it was "smooth sailing" all the way; for others there were obstacles that had to be overcome. There was no greater disappointment for the student than to hear he failed his test and no greater joy than to hear he passed it.

Beaming with pride, Ginna Lucke displays her new driver's license, the result of several hours of classroom instruction and behind-the-wheel driving.

Linda Sheil and Wesley Veile are discovering that checking the oil in an automobile is not too difficult a job.

Ability to change a tire is one of the tasks Wesley Veile is learning as part of his driving instructions.

Physical Education Classes

Teddy Brenson is developing arm muscles as he does the shoulder stand on the parallel bars.

"Don't be a rinky-dink--you gotta be tough!" With these words, Mr. Kuhl prodded the boys in his phy. ed. classes into doing their 30 fingertip push-ups as a warm-up exercise.

Sore muscles and lack of breath were sharp reminders that summer vacation had left some students out of shape. Although requiring strenuous exertion, the classes provided an enjoyable break for students to become nimble participants in individual and team sports, while stressing values of competition and appreciation of good sportsmanship.

Hockey, soccer, volleyball, badminton, basketball, and folk dancing were enjoyed by the girls, while the boys participated in more difficult exercise such as football, soccer, weight lifting, baseball, basketball, and calisthenics. Both boys and girls participated in the gymnastic program which developed skills in balance and coordination.

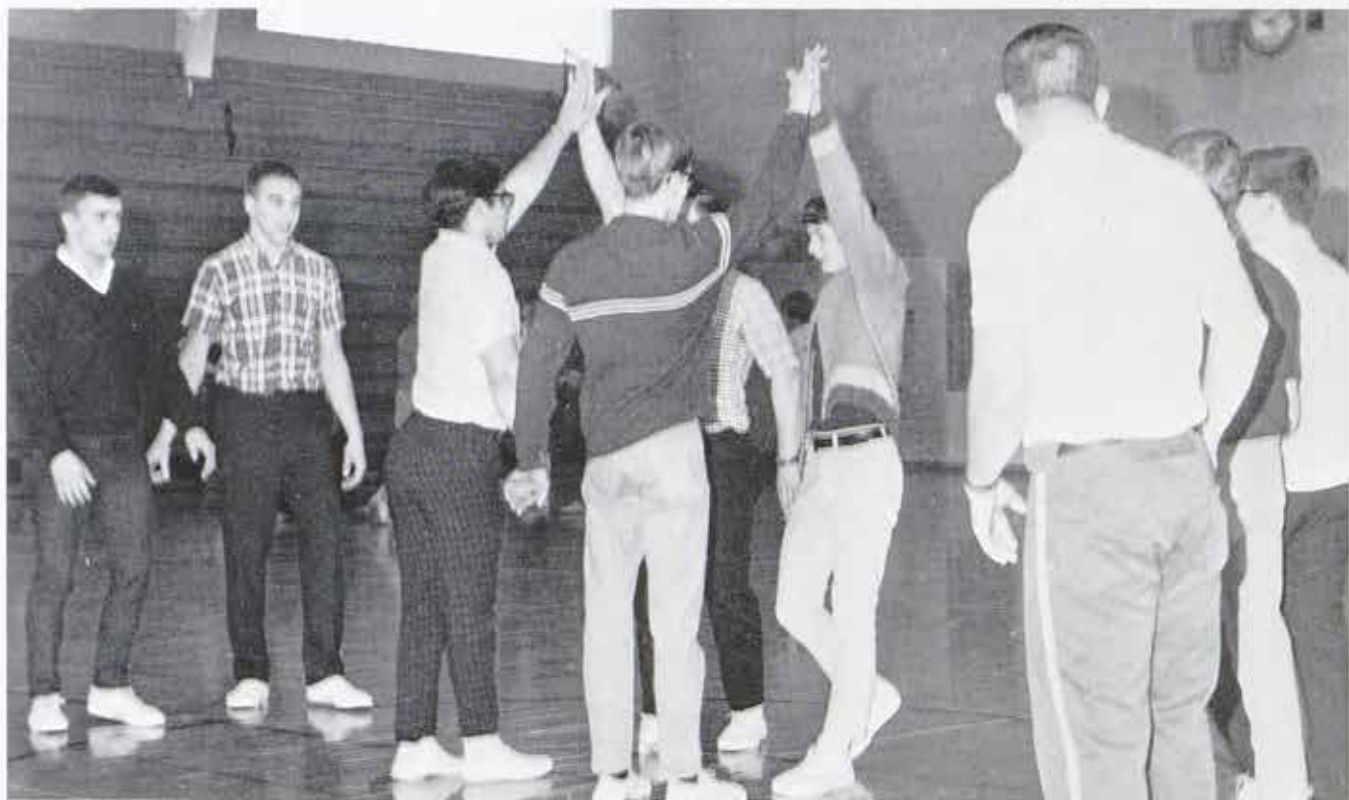

"Slide, slide--turn around" were instructions the record player sang as Susan Gaffney, Judi Delmore, Diane Sheil, and Kathy Roecker participate in a folk dancing unit in phy. ed.

In a soccer game, Kathy Pennington makes an attempt to pass to Jane Baryenbruch while Mary Lebica tries to block her pass.

Combine Fun, Skill Development, Competition

Who needs girls? In co-ed gym class in which the boys outnumber girls, the boys decide to fill in as girls and continue with the square dance.

Keeping her eye on the birdie, Mary Lou Jobe volleys the birdie in an attempt to offset her opponents.

The first to break the pyramid form, Dan Delmore was one of the many boys who participated in gym exhibit given by the boys and girls phy. ed. classes.

ORGANIZATIONS

Our activities reflect our personalities. The many faces of a teenager are revealed through participation. Whether we are studious and shy, carefree and outgoing, each must find a personal means of self-expression. Activities provide golden opportunities to develop interests whether instructional, musical, athletic, or just for fun, are vital parts of our high school lives. They are important to our future, because, once cultivated, a talent or interest in a hobby is never lost. Activities provide opportunities to develop initiative and leadership. We learn to spend our hours most effectively and wisely. The broader our interests now, the more varied will be our adult life.

To Form Mixed Chorus

Singing for their own pleasure and that of others proved a profitable past time for the members of the Mixed Chorus. Composed of fifty-three students with vocal music ability, the chorus practiced diligently each day during the seventh hour under the direction of Miss Ruth Ann Gundrum. Derryn Loomis was the piano accompanist.

Harmony was the key note of all chorus activities with members working as a unit to prepare and present various programs which started with the Veterans' Day program. A fine presentation was made by the chorus at the Christmas concert, which was opened with the candlelight processional "O Come All Ye Faithful". Participation in the Music Festival, the Stand Rock Concert in May, and Commencement exercises, kept the chorus hard at work throughout the year.

BOY'S QUARTET Skip Krueger, Steve Scheer, Jim Jacobson, and Scott Scheer sing "Go Tell It On The Mountain" as their contribution to the Christmas Concert.

Bring Honor To WDHS

With rhythmic accuracy and musical perfection, the WD Concert Band opened its concert season with the traditional Christmas concert. The 62 musicians, under the direction of Mr. Bestul, also drilled on routines with audience appeal for the Spring Concert and the Stand Rock Concert. Highlighting this band year was an exchange concert with Waunakee High School. The band maintained traditional high ratings when they won first place in marching competition at Stevens Point and made a fine showing at the solo-ensemble contest in April and the music festival in May. As the year came to a close, the strains of "Pomp and Circumstance" signified the band's final appearance of the school year.

Band Contribute To Music Program

The Junior Varsity Band, made up entirely of freshmen and sophomores, is the newest addition to our music department. Directed by Mr. Robert Bestul, the band practiced during the B and C periods of the 4th hour. During the football season, the Junior Varsity Band combined with the Varsity Band to become one marching band. In the spring, the Junior Varsity entered Class C competition in the Music Festival.

The Dance Band was made up of a select group of musicians from the Varsity and Junior Varsity Bands. They played for Talent Night, the Cabaret, and the Spring Concert. Playing with variety and vigor, they practiced every Thursday evening under the direction of Mr. Robert Bestul.

Junior Varsity Twirler Gerry Kahler, Majorette Lisa Reese, and Twirler Patty Reidelbach add color and flash to the marching band.

'Mike' Over 8,000 Miles To WDHS

Michelle Rinella, our AFS student who hails from Barletta, Italy, is known for his gay Latin laughter and quick smile. The warm, sunny town of Barletta, which is known as the Garden of Europe, is quite different from the Dells, but "Mike" soon became accustomed to his new life and family, the Ernest Timms.

Mike's stay is sponsored by the local AFS club, which introduces the foreign student to the school and community and attempts to make him feel at home. The purpose of AFS is to promote understanding among the peoples of the world by sharing and exchanging ideas on the personal level--between the AFS student and the community.

For the first time, a WDHS student participated in the Americans Abroad program, which sends American students to foreign countries for a summer. Jamie Bork was the fortunate student, spending the summer of 1966 in the southern part of Sweden.

Nominating, campaigning, and voting added a realistic touch to one of the first activities sponsored by the Student Council, the election of class officers. Planning and supervising Homecoming activities was another of the Council's major responsibilities. Employing student suggestions, activities, and projects, the Council promoted democratic action. Serving as a channel of communication between the student body and the administration, the Council discussed complaints and suggestions from fellow students and offered solutions to administrative personnel for final consideration.

The Council, advised by Mr. David Lake, is made up of the officers of each class plus three representatives from each of the four classes, two selected by faculty and one elected by student vote. Under the leadership of the president, Tom Weber, the Council met monthly during the third period.

NHS Recognizes Scholarship, Leadership, Character, Service

National Honor Society members fulfilled their qualifications for membership in this honorary organization by achieving in scholastics and displaying leadership, service, and character in all their activities.

"Noblesse Oblige" is the motto of this society. The emblem is represented by the keystone and flaming torch. At the base of the keystone are the four letters

C, S, L, S, which stand for the four cardinal principles of the organization. These qualities are measured by the student's class rank, his extra-curricular activities, and a character rating by members of the faculty. The WDHS chapter, advised by Mr. Donald Skarda, has been a member of the Society since 1959.

Four members of the WDHS Key Club served at the administrative level of the Wisconsin Upper-Michigan District. service projects during the year which included buying pennants for the gym, helping Kiwanians with Christmas baskets, selling peanuts at basketball games, and presenting "Freedom on Trial" to the student body. In addition to service activities, there were such social events as the Christmas party, and the parent-teachers banquet in the spring.

With the help of their adviser, Mr. Richard Lucke, the debaters gained facility in speaking, research, analysis, and organization.

Arrow Editors Get 2-Week Briefing At UW

Pictures, crop, write, rewrite, layout, DEADLINE! PANIC! These words of the journalism trade grew very familiar to the yearbook staff. To get ready for the big task of putting out the '67 yearbook, Editors Cheryl Corning and Diane Gruenwald spent two weeks at the Yearbook Editors Clinic at the University of Wisconsin where they learned the proper techniques in the editing of a yearbook.

Co-Editors Diane Gruenwald and Cheryl Corning are busy cropping pictures to fit layouts for the organizations section of the '67 ARROW.

Careful attention was given to planning pictures that told the story of the year's activities. Copy was written, counted, and rewritten to fit the allotted space, and pictures were cropped to place the emphasis on the action. The final result was 112 pages of pictures, copy, and a great deal of hard but gratifying work--preserving the happy memories of the '66 -'67 school year.

Spanish Club Welcomes Adviser From Cuba

With the charm of her native Cuba, Mrs. Santovenia brought a new bounce to the Spanish Club. Because the trend is toward closer relations in the Western Hemisphere, the need has arisen for a thorough and basic understanding of the culture, customs, and language of Spanish speaking people. With this in mind, Spanish Club meetings were planned to familiarize the members with various phases of Spanish culture and customs.

Activities for the year included the party celebrating "Felices Navidades." The "Carnaval" before Lent, similar to the New Orleans Mardi Gras, was a gay affair accentuated by the reveler's interesting costumes. A trip to Chicago to view a Spanish film climaxed the year's activities.

Librarians Render Invaluable Service

The primary objective of student librarians, improving library service, is achieved in two ways. By handling the simple, routine duties of a library - circulation, shelving, and care of books, magazines, newspapers, pamphlets, clippings, and audio-visual materials -- they free the librarian for more professional work.

Secondly, as public relations agents, they are unequalled. As they handle the library's materials, they learn not only their location but also their value and can spread that knowledge to their fellow students. No advertising is as effective as the word-of-mouth recommendation from one student to another.

Truly student librarians serve their school as valuable assistants and ambassadors of good will.

Successful Future Homemaker Is Goal Of FHA

FHA provided experiences which helped members recognize the broad responsibilities of today's homemaker. ## Future Farmers Train For Agri-Business

Vocational agriculture is more than farming. In fact, farming represents just a small segment of agricultural activities. Employment offices recognize that 40% of all jobs in the United States are directly or indirectly agricultural. Last year the graduates of the College of Agriculture averaged $200 higher than graduates placed in other fields.

Realizing the importance of agricultural training, the club under the direction of Mr. Frank Weigel, adviser, planned the work of FFA to train young men in the technical and financial aspects of agriculture.

And Fitness In GAA Activities

Shedding a portion of their femininity, and donning a spirit of vigor and fight, the WD girls enthusiastically entered the Girl's Athletic Association. With Mrs. Bea Couhig as their guiding force, the girls met every Thursday from 7:00 to 9:00 p.m. Bowling, highlighted by the bowling awards banquet, occupied the fall season of activity. During the winter season basketball was offered, while volleyball, gymnastics, and badminton were the spring sports. Each sport was highlighted by a play-off tournament between the two top teams.

Earning the five hundred points necessary to receive a letter provided challenge for each individual. In order to receive a letter, a girl must have played in a majority of the team sports and should also have participated in extra activities. In the spring, the GAA girls donned dresses and decorum for the annual banquet, at which time awards such as numerals, letters, sweaters, and GAA pins were presented.

Sandy Volkey, Mary Brown, Jacque Blatchley, Ginna Lucke, Ann Johnson and Sally Olson lead a cheer before a Baraboo basketball game.

"Come on, you guys, Yell!" was the cry of the cheerleaders as they yelled their way through the cold football games and the long basketball season. Throughout the year the cheerleaders led the vocal support for WDHS teams with this plea, and students responded with enthusiasm. These girls spent many of their summer mornings practicing to perfect their cheers. When school came, long nights were put in polishing their cheers before each game.

Pep assemblies before every home athletic event roused the spirit of students and stimulated interest in each athletic event. The cheerleaders organized skits for pep assemblies and recruited actors from the student body. The girls traveled throughout the conference area with the athletic squads cheering them on through thick and thin. They kept alive school spirit, enthusiasm, pride in our school.

SPORTS

Sports mean grueling hours of practice to the athlete, nervous tension to the coach, and stimulating pastimes to the spectators. However, regardless the kind of sport, we all enjoy the thrill of competition. Mile after mile . . . lap after lap . . . practice after practice . . . produces athletes. Through determination, individuals become a team. Athletics offer excitement to some, to others the possibility of college, and a deep sense of satisfaction to everyone. Sports kindle enthusiasm. The magic of a sport is its power to unify--to incite the student body to cheer for the common cause of victory. Participation in sports develops enthusiasm, loyalty, dedication, and sportsmanship, qualities which are important in our future years.

Lettermen Enjoy The Common Bond Of Athletic Activity

Bob Priester, Mike Horkan, and Don Skarda are revising the constitution for the Lettermen's Club which was reorganized this year under the direction of Mr. Kuhl.

The WD Club is an honorary organization. Boys who have won letters in any sport automatically become eligible for membership in the Lettermen's Club. Sporting blue and white jackets and sweaters, members were justly proud of their athletic prowess, for hours of grueling practice and months of intensive training lay behind the coveted letter awards.

Sportsmanship, fair play, and honest effort were key words for all athletes who participated in football, cross country, basketball, wrestling, track, and baseball. Throughout the year, members of the club displayed cooperation, leadership, and service and generally promoted good citizenship among all students.

As the piles of snow started to melt, golfers brightened at the prospect of spending long hours in the sun perfecting golf swings. Not willing to wait until fairways and greens were ready, the enthusiastic linksmen started working out in the gym with a practice net. As soon as the weather permitted, practice was continued after school at Dellview. The playing team, made up of Larry Meyer, Ruggy Gaffney, Don Skarda, Craig Dittrich, and Randy O'Neil, won 30 matches and lost 24 in the overall competition. Larry Meyer led the team in points scored with 266 points out of 363. Larry Meyer and Ruggy Gaffney ended the season with average scores of 42. Don Skarda and Craig Dittrich followed with scores of 44.

In their best performance of the season, the '66 golf squad finished sixth in the sectional meet at Sauk-Prairie in which fourteen schools competed. At the conference meet at Baraboo the Dells finished in eighth place.

Trackmen Develop Perseverance And Energetic Zeal

Track calls for that extra ounce of endurance, long hours of physical exertion, occasional pain and discomfort, and soaring journeys into space. During dual meet competition the team found little success, comprising a record of 1 win and 4 losses. In sectionals they stood out, however, by placing second. In Class B state competition, Pat Sweeney placed in the hurdles and John DeMerit placed in the pole vault. At the end of the season, the trackmen elected Mike Horkan Captain and Pat Sweeney the Most Valuable Trackman.

Making that extra effort, Jerry Kasdorf follows through to complete a jump at 10 feet.

Dave Gussel displays excellent form, while broad jumping for good distance.

Baseball Team Ends Season With 8-2 Record

Sparked by the outstanding pitching of Les Pennington and consistent hitting of Richie Lucke, Jeff Field, and Dennis Sweeney, the Dells combined to have one of their greatest seasons in Dells history. During the course of the season, they compiled an 8-2 record. In tournament play, they fell one game short of a state bid. Richie Lucke was selected as Most Valuable Player and Les Pennington was selected Captain by his teammates.

Some fifty fellows, including eleven lettermen, reported for the first football practice in August. The squad, under Head Coach Kuhl and Assistant Coaches Schultz, Lewison, and Morehead, immediately buckled down to hard practice for the approaching contests with the school in the South Central conference. The players demonstrated exceptional team spirit and stuck together one hundred per cent through a season consisting of two wins, four losses, and two ties.

At the end of the season, the team selected Norm Heitman as the most valuable player and Frank Gray as the most improved player. The conference coaches selected John DeMerit as All-Conference and Norm Heitman received Honorable Mention.

Cross Country Competition Requires Endurance And Determination

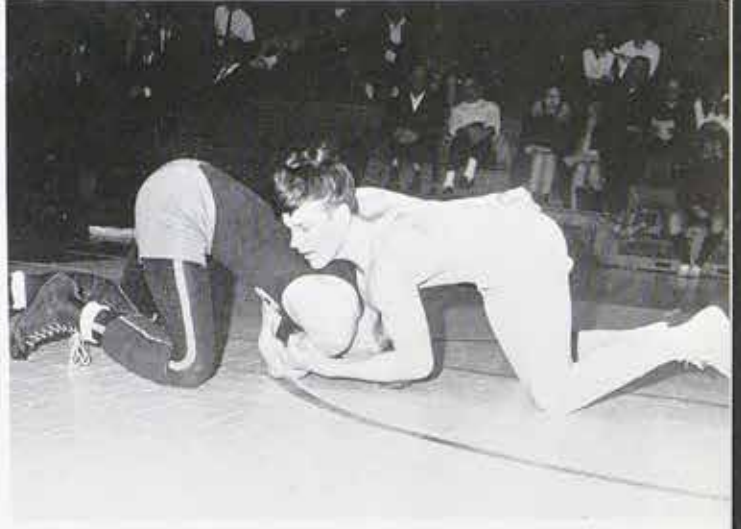

Dells team gets off to a fine start in meet against Portage Warriors.

Out, over, down, up, under, around, and back to the finishing point! As soon as school started in the fall, members of the cross country team coached by Mr. DeMerit started rigorous training to prepare for the strenuous season. Long hours on the track brought blisters and tired muscles, but developed the endurance and stamina necessary for cross country competition. During the season, the team competed in meets against Reedsburg, Mauston, Rio, Portage, Adams-Friendship, Sauk-Prairie, and Richland Center. They took first place in the meet against Rio. At the end of the season, Mike Hartman was elected captain by his teammates, and Wayne Decorah was named the most valuable runner.

Dean Dorow is attempting to get control of his opponent on the mat for a 2-point takedown.

Steve Ennis is trapping the arm in order to get around his opponent for a takedown.

Matmen Provide Many Thrills And Spills

Wrestling is a zooming sport in this country. It differs from other sports in that each wrestler is on his own, against a man his own size, and learns to depend upon himself. Mr. Kuhl assisted Coach Getgen in teaching escapes, holds, and various movements to beginners and helping the varsity players polish their technique.

Dells wrestlers rose to the occasion on January 28 to place 3rd in the Dells Invitational, scoring 7 pins and 1 decision in the first round. Duane Gray took first place in his weight class at the South Central Conference meet at Mauston, and Steve Ennis placed third. Duane Gray, this year's Captain, was also elected Most Valuable wrestler by his teammates.

Intramural Basketball Provides Challenging

John Gavinski gets the tip on a jump ball to start an intramural game refereed by his brother, Bob Gavinski. Craig Ditrich and Wayne Kurtzweil stand ready to take the ball.

Every Monday night during the winter season, the gym was alive with the sound of bouncing basketballs and shouts of "Get that rebound!" Judging by the number of boys who participated, the boys' intramural basketball program was a great success. This sport, which emphasized sportsmanship, teamwork, and recreation, gave over seventy boys an opportunity to increase their basketball skills and knowledge while playing against boys of equal ability.

Under the direction of Coach Kuhl, the boys were divided into eight teams made up of members of each class. Every player had to play at least two quarters during a ball game. These teams were captained by Tom Anderson, Greg Georgeson, Francis LaMere, Bruce Rödger, John Howley, Frank Gray, Mike Van Deuren, and Bob Priester. A ten-game schedule was worked out for the season, and competition was keen for first place.

Volleyball Provides Competition And Fun

During early morning hours, the action was fast and furious in the gym. In spite of snow and subzero weather, volleyball enthusiasts reported regularly for practice at the unheard of hour of 7 a. m. Norm Heitman, Dan Delmore, and Mike Van Deuren, the senior lettermen, formed the nucleus of this year's team.

Cagers Sometimes Outscored-But Never Outplayed

It was a year of ups and downs for the Varsity basketball squad. With hours of strategic planning and practice, the Chiefs put everything they had in every game. Team members worked hard, but lacked experience, so Coach Horn gave his younger players an opportunity to gain experience and develop their abilities by playing them in many of the Varsity games.

At the end of the season Jim Jacobson was elected captain by his teammates, John DeMerit was named the most valuable player, and Jerry Kasdorf, the most improved player. The high scorer for the season was John DeMerit with 255 points.

SCHOOL LIFE

We shall grow older, shall become tomorrow's leaders. As high school students our characters are being molded and our wisdom is constantly growing. As we work together to achieve a common end, whether it is the fun of an after-game dance, the prize for the best pep skit, or the success of the class play, we find that we must subordinate our individual whims to the establishment of that end. We need the experiences, the fellowship, the opportunities for leadership and originality provided us through various student activities.

In high school we establish certain standards of behavior for ourselves--standards that will govern our lives as we walk into the future and become leaders of tomorrow.

Homecoming '66... the culmination of weeks of planning... float construction... the traditional parade... the new dress for the Homecoming Dance... Students instilled with Homecoming enthusiasm sold booster hats, made mums, and decorated downtown windows with slogans for victory.

Like the Pied Piper, the pep band went through the halls leading students from their classes to the gym. At the pep assembly, the four classes competed in skit and cheering contests. To the dismay of the seniors, sophomores won the cheering contest and the juniors took first place in the skit contest. A popular skit was the one presented by the faculty.

In balmy Indian summer weather, the parade progressed through the streets presenting a colorful array of floats, bands, football players, and Homecoming Court representatives.

Spirits were somewhat dampened by Richland Center as they defeated the Chiefs 20-7 in the Homecoming game. Spirits were heightened again as couples danced to the popular music of the Esquires in the gym decorated by the seniors with corn stalks, pumpkins, and colorful leaves.

Following WDHS tradition, Sally Olson and King Don Skarda start the dancing following the coronation.

Promgoers Dance Under Spell Of "Some Enchanted Evening"

The 1966 Junior Prom truly lived up to its theme "Some Enchanted Evening," as it brought the charm and beauty of the Old South to Dells High. Couples strolled from the porch of a stately plantation mansion to cross a small bridge with fountains spraying on both sides. Changing lights playing on the water, lilies floating on the pond, and honeysuckle vines entwined through the bridge were the final touches to this charming scene.

Couples received Southern hospitality as they were served at tables decorated with miniature banjos, tiny, delicate fans, and Confederate flags. Enchanced by the romantic atmosphere, couples danced to the soft, rhythmic music of Jack Opie and his orchestra.

The finale of the evening came with the junior couples joining King Mike Horkan and Queen Derryn Loomis in the Grand March.

With it ending all too soon, Promgoers left to dine and then to attend the Post Prom party at the Dell View Hotel.

"Two Old Ladies and a Piece of Gum" was the subject of the original skit by Dave and Barb Zinke which won grand prize at Talent Night.

Two bands, the "Sleepwalkers" and the Dance Band, provided music for the dancers at the Cabaret "Candy Land" sponsored by the WDHS Music Department. Proceeds from the dance are used to pay for Music Festival fees and band trips.

"Stay behind the red line!" yells Mr. Schauf to remind students to stay out of the hall area during noon hour period. Jamie Bork, Mary Gissal, and Lynn Schultz are dressed up in AFS costumes.

In an atmosphere of smiles and tears at the conclusion of Commencement, Julie Braun folds her gown as a finale of her high school years.

Commencement Is Viewed With Relief, Sorrow, Anticipation

Looking back, seniors tend to think only of the good times -- after-game dances, assemblies, exchange of class rings, varsity letters, slumber parties, skiing and tobogganing parties, Prom. They remember the thrill of last-minute victory, the relief after final exams, young love, corny jokes. For some high school was a period of industrious study; for others, cars, sports, and parties were the most important. But for all, it was an opportunity to make friendships and store up poignant memories.

Four years had passed, and graduation marked the end of one phase of our lives, the preparation for the future.
WITHIN OURSELVES OUR FUTURE LIES.
