"Being the newspaper editor has been an exciting challenge for me this year. It was an amazing reality to work with such talented classmates to cover interesting stories that took place in our own school and community in 2011-2012. We were extremely fortunate to have such a support system with Kay James and the Dells Events. I hope this year's foundation helps build the newspaper in the upcoming years!"

ESTREMTS

The Class of 2012 and their prom committee-- prom advisor Allison Hoch, and prom chairs, Caitlyn Gus* sel and Sydney Flock, came together to construct an amazing memory to last a lifetime. They selected a very origifnal theme, "A Touch of Class" for an event took place the last week in April. The highlight of the dance for many was when all of the decorations came tumbling down. People from all around rushed over to hold up the illuminated archway, and Grand March was able to light-heartedly continue. Court ensued with the girls wearing tiaras and holding 3-rose bouquets as they were escorted by the boys.

The process on the way to the dance was very complex because of all the funds that had to be raised for prom. The class managed to raise more than their goal to purchase the towering light-up mock skyscrapers, a "bridge" to walk underneath, pounds of glitter, and what seemed to be hundreds of glue sticks for the hot glue guns. Many blisters, meetings, cardboard cutouts, and time went into this project to make sure that it was what everyone expected and more. Everyone had an amazing time as they danced in their beautiful gowns and distinguished tuxes, helping their class reach their dream of a night to remember.

Spinit Week chairs Jasmine Holland and Paige Lindner worked their hardest to create a great experience for everyone at the school. Some of the fun activities induded door decorating, dress up days, and "class cheers" at the assembly. lunior Kia Satari found the "Hidden Hornet" in town, winning a prize. Seniors won the class cheer competition Friday with their boys (Kelby Freel, James Koronka, Chris Gantz, Brock Temple, and Caleb Fedewa) doing funny stunts in throwback cheerleading uniforms. Freshman Austinjenkins also manned up and threw on an old uniform to cheer on his class. To finish up the Friday Spint Week assembly, Chieftain Choir took the floor to sing the Alma Mater; students sang along in the stands. ## "Walking In a Winter Wonderland" Winter Ball 2012

Feburary Itth, 2012, marked an event for many WDHS students. The annual Winter Ball dance was held yet again and many students had "The time of their lives."

The theme for Winter Ball this year was "Walking in a Winter Wonderland." The chairs for this year's dance were Sawyer Cimaroli and Jade Ripp. The girls put in much time and effort to put together this formal event. Cimaroli stated that there was much pre-decorating that was needed to be done. "I made the centerpieces, an archway, cut the trees, made stars and snowllakes, and picked out some gossamer." The one decoration that was liked by many was the trees that were spraye with glitter and had fake snow attached to them. The trees surrounded the gym and also created the walkway for court mem bers to walk along. Snowllakes were put onto the black curtain that covered the bleachers. All of these embellishments and others helped create a true winter wonderland.

Along with dancing, students also participated in other activites. A couple of creative students borrowed a tie and, of course, the limbo competition began. Another activity that took place was musical chairs. Numerous students enjoyed all of these different events, with the help of the DJ student council purchased for the event. All of these apsects helped create a fun and social environment for everyone.

Overall, Winter Ball was a success. Cimaroli loved the comments she heard from many different students. Many said that they had more fun at this dance than at any before. She also gave credit to Mrs. Surman and Student Council for making Winter Ball successful. "Mrs. Surman played a main role in making Winter Ball possible," Student Council members also helped with setting up the gym the morning before the dance as well as clean up the morning after. Some members also volunteered to sell tickets during all three lunch periods. According to Cimaroli, the only downfall was the number of students that attended. She wished that there would have been better attendance but she was pleased overall with the event.

Throughout all the ups and downs, the $V$ ansity Sof tbal team fought through their season, coming out with mary outs tanding accomplishments, including a Conference Tite.

The season had many highlights, but their co-confer ence title with Westfield topped off the list. At the start of the season, Westfield was deemed the "top dog" in the conferenco, and when they beat the Chiefs early on they figured they had it locked up. But with hard work, dedication and the hep of the Wautoma Hornets, the Dells Chiefs were able to seize a final win over the Ploneers, which earned both teams a title.

A victory over the number one ranked team in divi: Sion two, the Edgerton Tiders, rang in high on the list as we. The 'W' boosted the girls' confldence and proved they were a threat to any competition. With an early lead in the garme, the Chiefs took control and didn't look back Going into the garme, we were all nervous," commented Alyss 3 5mith. "But we came into it like any other game and it pald off."

They had a very rough start to the season, but the D.C. Everest Tournament seemed to be the turning point yet again for the varsity team, and they came out strong Other than the fact that we played well that day, we were finally starting to look like a team," commented then-junior captain Brianna Smith.

They finished out in a heartbreaking game against Sauk Prairie during the second round of Regionals, closing their record off at 16-10. The Chief's had a successfu season in the eyes of Coach Gray, and plan on coming back stronger than ever in the season to come.

Golf team's long hard hours pay off with their 6th consecutive conference title and a regional title.
Earning a conference title, a regional championship, and a spot in the sectionals brought about arecord changing season yet again for the 2011 varsity boys golf team.

With nine returning seniors und five returning juniors, the team had a lot of experience and leadership. as well as fierce competition. In the end, only five filled the varsity team, including eaptains Josh Krucger, Alec Bernander, and Nick Mor. The other two spots were split between Caleb Fedewa and Jared Suefzer, with Bryce Buesing as the alternate.
"Josh Krueger, Nick Mor, and Alec Bernander were vital to the suceess of the team," complimented fellow teammate Fedewa. "They each shot low rounds that helped in both matches and winning conference."

Throughout the year, Wautoma proved to be the strongest opposition in the SCC, and they alternated match wins during the entire season. Each team member had personal goals and obstacles in their game they thad to overcome as well, but they pulled it together for the Conference Tournament, claiming the championship for the sixth consecutive year.

Their winning streak continued, progressing into their fourth Regional Title in five years. Though they did not make it through to the state toumament, they were all satisfied with the way the year ended, and are anxious for the upcoming season. Fedewa stated that he was looking forward to golfing in general, as well as

The Wisconsin Dells soccer team is growing and is on its way up with one of the best records they have ever had. Since last year the team gained about nine more players and more people joined is the season progressed.
Coach Ennis said that the most exciting part of the season was the number of players they had participating. He is excited for the years to come because be is getting more and more players every year and the players are starting to play year round.
Also, Coach stated that one of the biggest obstacles the team had to overcome was team flow. With the flood of players this year the team had a hard time getting a flow on the field, but when the chemistry came full circle, they were exponentially better than last year.
With five more wins than last season the team was close in every game and did not lose by more than four goals in a game. The most exciting part of the season was when the team took Montello to a double overtime victory. The whole team played their best game that night and they won in an upset.
Alco the team was given new uniforms and warm ups this year donated by Mr. Nelson and the Gussel family. The team made it to the playoffs for the first time in two years and played a well-fought game. Overall the Wisconsin Dells soceer team is a teams to watch in the upcoming years.

Coming into the 2011 Girl's Tennis season, it was clear that there would be vignificant changes in the team dynamic with a new coaching staff (Head Coach Michelle Skipchak and Assistant Coach Travis Wiegal.) many new fices, and a refreshod outlook. Players couldn't wait to start off their scason.
Competition for the top spots in and amongst the team was prevalent bot everyone was very supportive. Along with working hard for top positions, older players made it a goal to help out all the rookie athletes as well.
Senior captain, Jean Hall said, "Everybody worked really bard to create a close ream bond and an inviting atmosphere. We tried to help everyone out to be the best they could be, whether it was with a quick tip on serve form or a couple extra minutes after practice polishing backhand swings"
Highlights of the season included big team victories over Mauston and West Salem. "It's really nice to not only get a win yourself but to get a win for your team as well." said first team letterwinner and 2012 team captain. Megan Jarzynबki.
As the regular season drew to a clese, varsity playens set lofty goals for subsectionals. While no players qualified for sectionals, team members put up admirable efforts with many winning at least one match.
With next year's team competing in the Capitol Conference. WDHS can look forward to even more competitive matches. Junior Taylor Remington commented on ber team by saying. "The senions we had really shaped the program and were here for at least three years each. They'll have big sboes to fill, but with our school entering the Capitol Conference next year I think well have an amazing chance to show off our talent. ## SUCCESS

Paving their way to success was definitely not a struggle for the WDHS volleyball team in the 2011 seoson. The Vorsily teom finished $9-1$ in conference ond $22-7$ overall.

It wasn't a championship season like Coach Knetter would have liked, but it definitely was a memorable one. Knetter said "This was the most gratifying season while coaching at WDHS." The 2011 Cross Courtry team worked hard throughout the season. They got along great and improved on their personal bests, with captains Max Hockerand Theresa Madland in charge.

Madland, Anderson Cizmowski, and Hallie Hackl-Ftank led the team for the girls, along with Hocker, Dakota Hammerly, and Alex Whiteside leading the team for the boys. These six people pushed their teammates, helped one another, and showed that working as a ceam is better than doing it for yourself. Madland and Hackl-Frank were the only two atheletes who finished 2nd team all conference, but everyone worked hard to finish fourth in the conference overall.

Knetter was very impressed with this season. Knetter measures his team on togethemess, appreciating one another, and improving their times. This year the team definitely had it down! His goal next year is to improve on their numbers, win conference, and compete at an even higher level to win Sectionals.

"Everything to gain and nothing to lose" is what the 2011-2012 Girl's Basketball season played each and every game by. With only one returning varsity player, this season did not turn out as expected. In the end, it's about the team.

Together Through The Change

Link Crew was a group started at WDHS to help the freshmen transition into high school. Juniors and seniors apply to be a part of this group and are selected by the advisors: Mr. Munderloh. Mrs. Hoch. and Mrs. Leaf. There are two different groups that the Leaders are split into. social leaders and academic leaders. During finals week the academic leaders have tutoring "cocoa and cram" sessions with the freshmen to help them get ready for their tests. The social leaders organize gettogethers and handle in-school activities. Some fun things that the freshmen got to do this year was a Battle of the Sexes" competition. a movie day, and follow up activities with their leaders. The goal of Link Crew is to make the freshmen comfortable in their new environment, and according to many 9th graders. it has been beneficial so far. Leaders also find the group very vital to the school atmosphere. Senior leader Jared Seufzer said. Because freshmen are transitioning to a whole new environment, Link Crew really helps them succeed.

The 2011-2012 chairs diepliyed profound growth and improvemient as they progeesed through the year. Significant events such as the Celehrations of Choral Masic and the Winter Concert were jast a few example of the hard work and dedication these stodents displayed. What these performances don't show are the hours and hours of practice put in all for that salke of sharing masic with others. The biggest even for these students is not a big test or a graded project, bat a performance with the purpose of sharing what they learmed throughout the year with the people closest to them.

To many, choir is mach more than a class, as the kids have a choice of whether they want to be in the class. 'It's not just a class to taks, It's a break from your everyday schedule to jus be yous to have fua and do what you love. There is not one pervoe in choir that is there just because," says mophomore Bewea Frederiken.

As a venior, Madison Lamore has becn in choir for only two of his four years, but is glad he decided to take it: -Choir is such a great chas beveuve it is all atour creating someding out of nothing."

Choir texcher Tom Mundetlob is very impresed with how this year is going so far. This is his 3rd year as the WD Choir teacher and so far he "toves it... The potential for all choirn is endless."

Though this year's group is very talemed, they are very young as well. This year coukd be called a rebuilding year only dae to the fict that we have many more underclasinen compared to upperclassmen. Their talent ruas jast as decp and their work cthic will insure great mings:"

Students are alvo grateful to have a teacher like Munderfoh. Frederikeon said, "Mr. Musdy is an inspirsilion and gives off the vibe that makes you want to come everydiy."

The WDHS marching band went out with a bang, performing a concert to wrip up their successful 2011 scason. Between parades foothall games, a golf outing, and practices, the band had a hectic start to the school year. But with the optimism and dedication of the staff, they stayed positive, and proxluced "the best band we"ve ever had", a compliment from the head band teacher. Marti Fults

On Monday. October 24, the high sehool marching band, dressed in their best, showed off their uniforms and musieal abilities for their fans. Their concert, held in the high school gym. featured the songs of their marching season, and promoted each of the sections individually. Usually, they are performing in strict, uniform formations, but this concert was all about having fun. The kids were able to show off their true personalities by wearing costumes and dancing in accordance with the songs-

The suceess of their season would not be complete, however, without all the preparation put in at the begianing of the season. "Marching band is like a sport." joked Mr. Roble at the concert: and with grueling practices beginning in early August and 57 hours before the start of the sehool year, he was not far off. Fults remarked, "It's mostly the students. It takes a lot of time to prepare for a few minutes of performance"; without their complete commitment, the final product wouldn't be as execptional and entertaining as it has become. Jacqui Hilliard, a five-year marching band member, commented that, "The drills and songs have gotten harder since I've been here. but there's more coordination with this year's band, and we worked extremely hard until we had it perfected."
The veason wouldn't have been up to its standards if it wasn't for the help of the senior class. With twenty-two senions in the band, they had a leaping hend-start into the scason. "It makes a differenec having so much good leadership," thanked Mrs. Fulss of the senior class accomplishmenk this year. Though the seniors helped out tremendously, Mrs, Fults, Mr. Roble. Mr. Baker, and the band has left a huge impact on the stadents as well. Hilliard later stated that, "They have opened up countless opportunities for me and have further developed my leaderhip and responsibility skills for the future."

11 Tribute To Dultot bloakicer

Wisconsin Dells High School had a hard time saying goodbye to Dalton Blackdeer who was a kind and loving student. His memory lives on through his family and friends. He was the type of person who always looked on the bright side of things, no matter what the situation was. He was that one person who was always there for someone in need, when the rest of the world walked out. Blackdeer will be missed by all of WDHS students and staff, but we hope now that he is in a better place looking down on us each and every day. Blackdeer was a giver, not a taker. He was geared towards helping other people. Before he got sick with diabetes, he was a mentor and a tutor for the Ho-Chunk Nation Youth Program. He was depended on to watch children and help them with their homework. He was respected by many for taking on this role. He loved playing video games and listening to music.
Myshell Mike said, "His dream was to take his family to the Statue of Liberty."
Nobody would ever have guessed that Blackdeer was sick. Having diabetes at a young age is not that common. How Blackdeer handled himself at school, you never would have known his situation. He never drew aftention to himself about being sick. His memory, however, will always live on at WDHS.
Blackdeer definitely left his mark on WDHS. His horrible news was all over Facebook the day it happened. It's amazing to see how much things change when somebody passes on. He was loved by so many students.
Senior Scarlett Stanley stated, "Dalton was a good kid, son and brother. Everyone loved him, and he was considered a jokester to all. Despite his death, it's best that he moved on so that he's not suffering or in pain. He will definitely be missed by many, but will be remembered at WDHS forever."

These five photos are a selection from Dalton Blackdeer's life at a younger age. He had a great life and an amazing family. He will truly be missed.

In October of 2011, the Japanese students of Iwaizumi came to Wisconsin Dells to visit their sister city. With this year's trip coming so early, Jan Hess, the Wisconsin Dells coordinator for the exchange program, had to come up with different ideas for the Japanese and the Wisconsin Dells High School students to do. There was no snow because they came a couple of months ear1y. Therefore, the students went on an Upper Dells Boat Tour, a Duck Tour on the Lower Dells, a hike up Devils Lake, made some fudge, took some old time photos, and went trick or treating with the student council for canned goods.

Coordinator Hess, who has been involved with the program for twenty-one years, says that the most rewarding part of leading the exchange program in Wisconsin Dells is seeing the connection between the students and knowing that it will change their lives for the better. Hess also has seen bigger numbers come out each year for the interviews to either go to Japan or host a Japanese student, and she is excited that more students are getting involved. Atso Hess is glad that the community is active with the Japanese exchange program and is looking forward to seeing the program prosper.
